To Whom It May Concern,

I'd like to nominate Honour House volunteer Dylan Myers for the PWABC Emerging Leaders Award. Dylan has served as a volunteer at Honour House since November 2013 and in this time he has proved to be one of our most valuable team members, demonstrating strong leadership on many occasions.

He recently took on the role of project manager for the development of our "Peace Garden" project, playing a critical role in the successful construction of an area of calm and reflection for our guest families as they go through some very difficult situations. He also took the lead and single handedly coordinated the management of the finish line, marshalled solely by Honour House volunteers, at this year's Vancouver City Marathon. His management of the event led to Honour House receiving a special community award from the marathon society for going above and beyond during the event.

Dylan voluntarily takes on the role of Head Grounds Keeper, turning up every weekend, without fail, throughout the summer months, to carry out many different grounds keeping tasks and managing our volunteer gardeners. He's worked hard to improve our grounds and the pride that he takes in his work is obvious to anyone visiting Honour House.

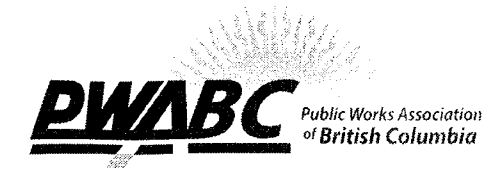

He has also enthusiastically applied himself to any tasks related to our fire safety plan and he has conducted our monthly fire safety inspection and testing on many occasions. He has helped with repairs around the house and has regularly helped at events both at Honour House and off site where he has generally acted as an excellent goodwill ambassador for our charity. His enthusiasm is infectious and his efforts to spread the word about the house amongst the Emergency Services and Military Communities are highly commendable.

He's very well-liked and respected by his fellow volunteers, our staff and our board of directors. If I had to recommend any of our volunteers for this award Dylan would immediately be the first person I'd think of.

If you have any questions about Dylan at all I'd be only too happy to speak to you.

Yours sincerely,

Craig Longstaff – General Manager
